Case No. 2:22-cv-04270

PETITION FOR WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS 28 U.S.C. §2254.

20 TO THE HONORABLE COURT AND COUNSEL FOR THE PUBLIC:

21 NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, Petitioner BLAKE LEIBEL, hereby moves for 22 issuance of a writ of habeas corpus 28 U.S.C. §2254, as soon as the matter can 23 be heard in the United States Courthouse, 255 E. Temple Street, Los Angeles, 24 California 90012 or wherever assigned by the office of the clerk responsible for 25 Writs of Habeas Corpus in Suite TS-134 of the courthouse.

26 Petitioner claims he is unlawfully restrained at as an incarcerated inmate at 3 This is Petitioner's first application for writ of habeas corpus in this Court to 4 reverse and vacate Petitioner's conviction by a jury of special circumstance 5 murder PEN §187; PEN §205 PEN §206 & PEN §220 (a)(1) and judgement was 6 imposed June 26, 2018 in the Superior Court of California, Los Angeles County

7 with a sentence of life imprisonment without the possibility of parole Case No.
8 BA443859. The California Court of Appeals, Second District, Second Division
9 affirmed denial of Petitioner's appeal to the sentence of life imprisonment 10 without the possibility of parole on June 20, 2020 Case No. B291049. Petitioner 11 seeks collateral review of his conviction.

12 Petitioner filed petition for writ of habeas corpus in the Superior Court of 13 California on May 3, 2020, Hon. Yvette Verastegui, Judge, summarily denied on 14 August 6, 2021. (EXBT. A). Petitioner filed the petition in the California 2nd 15 District Court of Appeal September 20, 2021 summary denied on November 23, 16 2021. The California Court of Appeals, Second District, Second Division took 17 judicial notice of their unpublished opinion. Petitioner filed the petition in the 18 Supreme Court of California summarily denied June 15, 2022.

19 Petitioner makes application to the Court to issue writ of habeas corpus on 20 the basis of the relevant statutory provisions of 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d)(1); 21 California Penal Code §§1473 et seq.; the constitutions of the United State and 22 State of California; the California Court of Appeal, Second Appellate District,

1 theories relied on in the Superior Court's decision to deny relief are consistent 2 with stare decisis in controlling federal or state decisions. Petitioner satisfies 3 the burden of proof by showing there was no objectively reasonable basis for the 4 Superior Court to deny issuing order to show cause.

6 GROUND ON DIRECT APPEAL

7 Petitioner's appointed appellant counsel challenged the conviction based 8 solely on grounds that introduction of the graphic novel "Syndrome" was 9 irrelevant. The Court rejected counsel's claim of irrelevance as incognizable for 10 reversing the judgment, finding "Syndrome" was introduced at trial as relevant 11 evidence of premeditation. The order draws the inference to Petitioner's state 12 of mind based on the novel. The judgment further draws conclusions of guilt 13 from testimony given by detective witness at trial alleging statements made by 14 Petitioner during the search of his home and his arrest. The issue of a 15 preliminary hearing was mentioned, but this Court of Appeal found Petitioner 16 failed to raise any constitutional claim on appeal, whatsoever, and thus was not 17 entitled to reversal on the harmless error standard enumerated in Chapman v.
California, 385 U.S. 18, 24 (1967).

18 GROUND FOR DENIAL OF WRIT HABEAS CORPUS IN CALIFORNIA COURTS

19 The grounds for Superior Court Hon. Judge Verastegui's summary denial of 20 the petition for writ of habeas corpus without issuing order to show cause or 21 holding an evidentiary hearing are a contrary or unreasonable application of 22 federal and state precedent and an unreasonable determination of the facts in 23 light of the evidence produced in support of the petition. (EXBT. A). Neither of 24 the California reviewing courts issued an opinion.

25 FACTUAL FINDINGS

26 On May 26, 2016 Petitioner was arrested and booked at TTCF under Case 27 No. BA443859. Petitioner was arraigned under case SA093029 on May 31, 2016.
28

1 Alelah Kamran appeared and declared a doubt into Petitioner's mental 2 competence criminal PEN § 1368 in Case No. SA093029 and proceedings were 3 in adjourned while the Grand Jury presented an Indictment found by the Court 4 to be true August 29, 2016 under Case No. BA443859. Kamran withdrew as 5 counsel and the public defender was appointed January 12, 2017. The next 6 week January 17, 2017 proceedings in SA093029 were dismissed on the People's 7 motion.

8 PROCEDURAL VALIDITY

9 The Superior Court found Petitioner failed to allege facts establishing 10 exception to the rule finding the petition procedurally barred for failing to raise 11 issues on appeal. In re Reno, 55 Cal. 4th 428, 490-493 (2012); In re Harris, 5 12 Cal.4th 813 (1993); In re Dixon, 41 Cal.2nd 756, 759 (1953).

13 PREJUDICE

14 The Court found Petitioner failed to show that but for counsel's deficient 15 performance there is a "demonstrable reality" a more favorable outcome would 16 have resulted if not for counsel's errors. In re Cox, 30 Cal.4th 974, 1016 (2003);
 17 In re Clark, 5 Cal.4th 750, 766 (1993); Strickland v. Washington, 466 U.S. 668, 18 697 (1984).

19 UNREASONABLE SEARCH

20 The Court found it to be clear from the unpublished opinion on direct appeal 21 Case No. B291049 that evidence presented at trial detailed exigent 22 circumstances so that PEN § 1538.5 motion was unwarranted. The decision 23 reads in relevant part:

24
 25 "When Deputy Micah Johnson arrived Olga brought him up to 26 date, and he spoke to a neighbor in the hallway how had not seen 27 anyone in at least a day or two. Deputy Johnson knocked on 28 the door, received no answer, and at 8:44 a.m, he called defendant, left a voicemail telling him wanted to know whether

1 he and Kasian were okay, and asking him to have Kasian call her 2 mother or the sheriff's station as soon as possible.

3 Deputy Johnson obtained a key to the apartment and 4 when other deputies arrived on the scene, he used the key 5 to unlock the door. Deputy Johnson was unable to open the 6 door because the inside safety latch was engaged, so he turned 7 the investigation over to Deputy Todd Mohr, who consulted their 8 sergeant. It was determined that exigent circumstances 9 existed to they kicked in the door.” [emphasis added].
10 (EXBT. B).

11 RIGHT TO COUNSEL

12 The court found the record did not indicate request for substitution of 13 counsel.

14 RIGHT TO PUBLIC TRIAL

15 The Court found Petitioner showed no prejudice from appellant counsel's 16 failure to challenge right of public trial characterizing the deficiency as no more 17 than appellant counsel's failure to raise issues. Smith v. Robbins 528 U.S. 259, 18 288 (2000); Jones v. Barnes, 463 U.S. 745, 750-752 (2000).

19 ARGUMENTS

21 REVIEW OF STATE DECISIONS

22 Petitioner stated a prima facie case for relief that was not procedurally 23 barred when brought as described. Assuming Petitioner's factual allegations 24 were true, Petitioner was entitled to relief. Petitioner argued the petition was 25 not procedurally barred and California Courts had jurisdiction to issue the writ 26 because the rules generally prohibiting raising an issue on habeas corpus not 27 raised on direct appeal do not bar an ineffective assistance claim on habeas 28 corpus. People v. Mendoza Tello, 15 Cal.4th 264, 266-267 (1997). Claims of fundamental constitutional error come to the Court procedurally as claims of ineffective assistance of counsel. In re Harris, 5 Cal.4th 813, 833 (1993); accord

1 People v. Pope, (1979) 23 Cal.3d 412, 428. So long as it can be demonstrated 2 that Petitioner's attorney acted unreasonably in doing something or omitting to 3 do something, this Court should move on to the question of prejudice. In re 4 Harris, supra at 834. The only determination required was whether the 5 petition stated a prima facie case for relief and if it was procedurally barred.
 6 Mass v. Superior Court, 1 Cal.5th 962, 974 (2016).

7 In conducting the evaluation of the petition, the courts erred by failing to 8 ask "whether, assuming the petitioner's factual allegations are true, the 9 petitioner would be entitled to relief." People v. Duvall, 9 Cal.4th 464, 474-475 10 (1995). If the court determined that the petition stated a prima facie case for 11 relief on a claim that was not procedurally defective, the court should have 12 issued the writ of habeas corpus, or an order to show cause. In re Lawler, 23 13 Cal.3d 190, 194 (1979); PEN § 1477. When the writ is issued, the petition has 14 accomplished its purpose. People v. Romero, 8 Cal.4th 728, 738 (1994).

15 SUMMARY DENIAL IS CONTRARY TO OR AN UNREASONABLE APPLICATION OF 16 FEDERAL LAW

17 In the context of an ineffective-assistance claim where appellant counsel 18 failed to preserve the structural errors on direct review, Petitioner bears the 19 burden to show deficient performance prejudice by demonstrating a reasonable 20 probability the result of the proceeding would have been different but for 21 attorney error. Strickland, supra at 687, 694. The Court must determine if 22 counsel effectively functioned to make the adversarial testing process work in 23 this particular case. Strickland, supra 688-689. Petitioner was entitled to be 24 assisted by an attorney, whether retained or appointed, who played the role 25 necessary to ensure that the trial was fair. Id at 685. That did not happen here 26 and Petitioner is not procedurally barred from collaterally challenging the 27 conviction based on effective assistance of counsel.
 28

1 The due process elements of a fair trial are defined by the Sixth Amendment.
 2 United States v. Cronin, 466 U.S. 648, 685 (1984). Ineffective assistance of 3 counsel is cause for a procedural default and the Sixth Amendment itself 4 requires that responsibility for the default be imputed to the State. Murray v.
 5 Carrier, 477 U.S. 478, 488–489 (1986). The constitutional guarantee of counsel 6 cannot be satisfied by mere formal appointment. Avery v Alabama, 308 U.S.
 7 444, 446 (1940). The right to effective assistance of counsel is recognized for the 8 effect it has on the ability to receive a fair trial.

9 Petitioner argued because collateral review is the only means through which 10 Petitioner can effectuate his right to counsel, denial of the writ on procedural 11 grounds restricts litigation of Petitioner's Sixth Amendment claims to trial and 12 direct review that would seriously interfere with Petitioner's right to effective 13 representation rendering the right to a fair trial itself without consequence.
 14 Kimmelman v. Morrison, 477 U.S. 365, 378 (1986). Where defense counsel's 15 failure to litigate a Fourth Amendment claim competently is the principal 16 allegation of ineffectively, Petitioner can prove that his Fourth Amendment 17 claim is meritorious and that there is a reasonable probability that the verdict 18 would have been different absent the excluded evidence sufficient to 19 demonstrate actual prejudice. Id at 375. In order to prevail, Petitioner need 20 only prove that the search or seizure was illegal and that it violated his 21 reasonable expectation of privacy in his home. Id at 374. Petitioner stated a 22 prima facie case that was procedurally valid in accordance with Supreme Court 23 precedent and there is no reason for the California courts denial.

24 DECISION BASED ON AN UNREASONABLE DETERMINATION OF THE FACTS IN 25 LIGHT OF THE EVIDENCE PRESENTED IN THE STATE COURT PROCEEDING

26 Petitioner claims TTCF denied him access to confidential attorney client 27 visitation with retained criminal counsel and retained civil attorney after arrest 28 but before arraignment at a critical time when there was no attorney of record.

1 He claims TTCF denied counsel after arrest and held Petitioner prior to 2 arraignment in Case No. BA443859 for months while the People held a Grand 3 Jury violating PEN § 825. Denial of access to retained attorneys prejudiced 4 Petitioner by preventing him from engaging chosen criminal counsel, 5 conducting transactions to finance his defense, and the California statutory 6 Sixth Amendment rights to counsel and to a speedy trial and there is no way 7 determine the prejudicial effects by denial of fundamental rights. U.S. v.
8 Gonzalez-Lopez, 548 U.S. 140, 146-147, 149, fn.4 (2006).

9 The Superior Court denied Petitioner's retained counsel's motion to 10 substitute counsel without making inquiries, where the Court had a duty to 11 inquire, resulting in denial of counsel of choice and structural error. Although 12 Petitioner was arrested and booked under Case No. BA443859 Ms. Kamran and 13 appeared for Petitioner on Case No. SA093029. She was not retained in this 14 case BA443859 and had an actual conflict of interest by adjourning proceedings 15 to a different courtroom and refusing Petitioner's written requests to withdraw 16 as counsel; and, substitute for chosen counsel, while a grand jury was convened.
17 Without means to engage retained counsel Petitioner was forced to accept 18 appointment of the public defender. Luis v. United States, 136 S.Ct. 1083, 19 1094-1095 (2016).

20 Simply stating the record contains no motion to substitute when the claim is 21 that Petitioner's counsel brought the motion and the motion was removed from 22 the record. The finding is unreasonable based on the acknowledgment that 23 Petitioner was held without counsel on the murder charges. The sexual assault 24 charge brought by Buccafurri one week earlier was bogus so she could stay in 25 the house Petitioner was planning on moving into. (EXBT. C). The record 26 shows the attorneys conveniently adjourned to the mental health court, 27 substituted for appointed counsel and the People dropped the charge having 28 held Petitioner while they indicted by Grand Jury. If the allegations in the writ

1 are taken as true Petitioner was a person of means who has been denied his 2 choice of criminal counsel, his transactional counsel and his resources and has 3 been prejudiced by subsequent ineffective assistance of counsel.

4 UNREASONABLE SEARCH

5 DECISION BASED ON AN UNREASONABLE DETERMINATION OF THE FACTS IN 6 LIGHT OF THE EVIDENCE PRESENTED IN THE STATE COURT PROCEEDING

7 The LASD deputies' search began when he re-entered the property searching 8 and then obtaining a key to Petitioner's apartment. The search of Petitioner's 9 home was of critical importance to the prosecution's case. Trial counsel knew of 10 the critical importance of the evidence recovered and Petitioner's statements to 11 the prosecution's case. Trial counsel had an obligation to investigate the basic 12 facts to determine that Petitioner was in his home and LASD circumvented the 13 judicial role in the lawful process. There could be no excuse for failing to 14 recognize an improperly initiated procedure and to file a suppression motion to 15 exclude evidence, and to continue to take defensive action to preserve 16 Petitioner's rights to challenge the principal evidence against him, all which 17 was obtained by warrantless search and seizure.

18 The Appellant Court's unpublished decision details the circumstances of 19 Olga Kasian's 911 calls on May 25, 2016 and May 26, 2016, respectively. There 20 was no substantial basis for the officers to conclude that probable cause existed 21 for searching Petitioner's residence at the time they responded to Olga's calls.
22 LASD determined exigent circumstances after crossing the threshold to 23 the home. They then went to the Holloway apartment door. Officers knocked, 24 left two voicemails on Petitioner's cell and left. There was no sign of foul play.
25 No new facts were relayed to deputies when they responded to Olga's May 26, 26 2016 call to 911. Other than an absence of communication between Olga and 27 her daughter, Olga saw a silhouette and the balcony door close from across the 28 street the day before. The officers entered the apartment building, knocked,

1 questioned the neighbor and left voice mails for Petitioner. No facts were 2 available to the officers beyond Olga's unparticularized suspicions. The 3 appropriate action for the deputies was to leave the property.

4 The trial Court's findings fail to evidence emergency or crime or report of 5 crime in progress. The officers mentioned no sounds or possible movement in 6 the apartment or any suspicious behavior other than failure to respond to the 7 phone and door and Petitioner's parked car in the parking lot. Neither Officers 8 Johnson and Mohr, nor Olga, were on the property legally. After 8:44 a.m.
9 Johnson and Mohr proceeded to enter the apartment building, obtained a key to 10 Petitioner's apartment, and opened the front door, which was security chain 11 locked from the inside.

12 The LAPD admits that it was their determination of an exigent circumstance 13 mid-way in the search, it did not begin with an exigency. Nothing in the record 14 on review indicates that LAPD pointed to specific and articulable facts from 15 which they concluded action was a necessary emergency or exigency at that 16 time before entering the residence.

17 The record shows Petitioner was out on bail in case SA093029 for an alleged 18 sexual assault at a different location that week. If the LASD believed there was 19 probable cause to search the home sufficient to obtain a key to gain entry in 20 furtherance of that objective, they would have been able to secure a warrant.
21 The deputies were conducting an unreasonable search of Petitioner's home 22 without a warrant at any such time after they had knocked and left the 23 property without a response. Absolutely no evidence supported a conclusion 24 that anything was amiss inside Petitioner's residence at the time of the search 25 and seizure. No neutral and detached magistrate made any finding of probable 26 cause to search the apartment or authorized any invasion of privacy at the time 27 appellant was seized.

1 SUMMARY DENIAL IS CONTRARY TO OR AN UNREASONABLE APPLICATION OF 2 FEDERAL LAW

3 It is a cardinal principle that searches conducted outside the judicial process, 4 without prior approval by judge or magistrate are per se unreasonable under 5 the Fourth Amendment – subject only to a few specifically established and well-6 delineated exceptions. Mincey v. Arizona, 437 U.S. 385, 390 (1978). In this case 7 the deputies’ behavior objectively reveals a purpose to conduct a search, “which 8 is not what anyone would think he had a license to do.” Florida v. Jardine, 133 9 S.Ct. 1409, 1417 (2013). Given the facts available, it was unreasonable, to 10 believe there was a crime being committed inside the home. Riley v. California, 11 134 S.Ct. 2473, 2484 (2014). At the “very core” stands “the right of a man to 12 retreat into his own home and there be free from unreasonable government 13 intrusion.” Silverman v. United States, 365 U.S. 505, 511 (1961). An officer 14 must have a lawful right of access in order to arrest a person in his home.
 15 Payton v. New York (1980) 445 U.S. 573, 587-590. It is a basic tenant of Fourth 16 Amendment law that searches and seizures inside a home without a warrant 17 are presumptively unreasonable. Id. at 586. The Fourth Amendment has 18 drawn a firm line at the entrance to the house. Id. at 590. The curtilage 19 describing the area immediately surrounding and associated with the home to 20 which the activity of home life extends is considered part of the home itself for 21 Fourth Amendment purposes. Collins v. Virginia, 138 S. Ct. 1663, 1666-1667 22 (2018). The decision constitutes an unreasonable application of clearly established United States Supreme Court precedents.

23 The presumption of unreasonableness that attaches to a warrantless entry 24 into the residence can be overcome by a showing of one of the few specifically 25 established and well-delineated exceptions to the warrant requirement. Katz v.
 26 United States, 389 U.S. 347, 357 (1967). To invoke the emergency aid 27 exception, the test is whether there was an objectively reasonable basis for 28 believing that medical assistance was needed, or persons were in danger.

1 Michigan v. Fisher, 558 U.S. 45, 49 (2009). Police may enter a home without a 2 warrant when they have an objectively reasonable basis for believing that an 3 occupant is seriously injured or imminently threatened with such injury.
 4 Bringham City v. Stuart, 457 U.S. 398, 400 (2006). Government officials bear a 5 heavy burden when attempting to demonstrate an urgent need that might 6 justify warrantless searches or arrests. Welsh v. Wisconsin, 466 U.S. 740, 749-7 750 (1984). The Supreme Court has recognized that recent technological 8 advances have made the process of obtaining a warrant itself more efficient, 9 where police officers can e-mail warrant requests to judge's iPads and judges 10 have signed such warrants and e-mailed them back to officers in less than 15 11 minutes. Riley, supra at 2493.

12 No Supreme Court precedent suggests the police can simply deem an exigent 13 event after the search has been commenced. It is plainly unreasonable for 14 police to obtain a key to someone's house to conduct a search absent a warrant.

15 REVIEW OF STATE DECISIONS

16 California law required a warrant to search Petitioner's home. The omission 17 of a suppression motion and hearing, whether tactical or inadvertent, 18 demonstrates ineffectiveness because it was objectively unreasonable, meaning 19 that the omitted claim was one that any reasonably competent counsel would 20 have brought. In re Reno, supra at 465. The penal code authorizes a motion to 21 suppress if the search or seizure without a warrant was unreasonable. People v.
 22 Williams, 20 Cal.4th 119, 129 (1999). Issues relating to the suppression of 23 evidence derived from governmental searches and seizures are reviewed under 24 federal constitutional standards. People. V. Troyer, 51 Cal.4th 599, 605 (2011).

25 It is undisputed that the police officers entered Petitioner's apartment 26 without a warrant. Such entry presumptively violated the Fourth Amendment 27 and taints the evidence seized as a result. People v. Ledesma, 43 Cal.3d 171, 28 227 (1987). The burden is on the People to establish the exception applies.

1 People v. Macabeo, 1 Cal.5th 1206, 1213 (2016). The California Supreme Court 2 has determined it is not enough that officers seek to rule out “the possibility 3 that someone... might require aid” to invoke the exigent circumstance exception 4 to the warrant requirement. People v. Ovieda, 7 Cal.5th 1034, 1047 (2019). This 5 case does not fall into any recognized scenario describing exigent circumstances.
6 Johnson and Mohr were required to point to specific and articulable facts from 7 which they concluded that his action was a necessary emergency or exigency at 8 that time before entering the residence. People v. Duncan, 42 Cal.3d 91, 97-97 9 (1986). The record fails to substantiate those articulable facts before entry.
10 Otherwise, a police officer “need not rely solely on lawfully obtained probable 11 cause, he can instead achieve ‘certain cause’ by conducting an unlawful 12 confirmatory search, thus saving himself the time and trouble of obtaining and 13 executing a warrant if he does not find the evidence.” Id. at 98. “If refusal of 14 permission to enter could convert mere suspicion of crime into probable cause to 15 arrest the occupant and search his home, such suspicion alone would become 16 the test of the right to enter, and the right to be free from unreasonable police 17 intrusions would be vitiated by its mere assertion.” Tompkins v. Superior 18 Court, 59 Cal2d 65, 68 (1963).

19 Exigent circumstances are defined as “an emergency situation requiring 20 swift action to prevent imminent danger to life or serious damage to property, 21 or to forestall the imminent escape of a suspect or destruction of evidence.”
22 People v. Ovieda, supra at, 1041. If the officers lacked probable cause to arrest 23 Petitioner at the time they entered the apartment building and knocked on the 24 doors and announced their presence, they lacked probable cause at the time he 25 entered the house as well because the silence of the occupants provided no 26 evidence of guilt. Horack v Superior Court, 3 Cal.3d 720, 725 (1970). The 27 officers had no way of knowing whether the persons had left the residence prior 28 to their arrival. The witness who called police had herself left the scene

1 between the time of her call and the arrival of the police. Even assuming there 2 was reasonable cause to believe persons were in the house, the officers still had 3 no basis for entry to search for persons, unless they had reasonable cause to 4 believe that the persons were committing a public offense in their presence.
 5 Horack, supra at 727. In this case the entrance was illegal, where “rather than 6 drawing the obvious conclusion that no one was at home the officer proceeded to 7 speculate...this attempt to create an emergency where none existed is 8 implausible.” People v. Smith, 7 Cal.3d 282, 287 (1972). The belief upon which 9 the officer acted was the product not of facts known to or observed by him, “but 10 his fanciful attempt to rationalize silence into a justification for his warrantless 11 entry.” Ibid. In Ovieda the Supreme Court of California firmly decided extant 12 law required a warrant. People v. Ovieda, supra at, 1046, 1049.

13 PREJUDICIAL IMPACT OF ERROR

14 Petitioner argued that counsel’s performance was so deficient it undermined 15 the proper functioning of the adversarial process and the trial cannot be relied 16 on as having produced a just result. Strickland, supra at 686. There is 17 reasonable probability sufficient to undermine confidence in the outcome.
 18 Strickland, supra at 694. Petitioner can show a reasonable probability 19 that, absent the errors, the factfinder would have had a reasonable 20 doubt respecting guilt. Id at 695. Appointed trial counsel’s performance was 21 deficient by failing before trial to challenge the principal evidence produced 22 from the unreasonable warrantless search and arrest of Petitioner in his home 23 in violation of his Fourth Amendment privacy right and existent California
 24 precedent. Any evidence gathered from Petitioner’s home, including the victim’s 25 body, cell phone, video tape from the curtilage, and Petitioner’s statements 26 made during the search, were plainly subject to exclusion.

27 Counsel was ineffective because reasonable trial counsel would have brought 28 a Fourth Amendment challenge to the use of evidence collection, where extant

1 authorities would have supported such an argument. It should have been 2 plainly obvious to counsel that the initiation of the warrantless search and 3 seizure need be challenged by trial counsel. The LASD's conduct in conducting 4 the illegal search of Petitioner's home is precisely the conduct the Fourth 5 Amendment was enshrined to protect against. To search and arrest Petitioner 6 in his home, a neutral judicial officer was required to make an independent 7 determination and Petitioner should have been successful at suppressing 8 evidence that was ultimately produced at trial without being tested in advance.

9 The question with respect to appointed counsel, is whether counsel's 10 deficient performance renders the result of the trial unreliable or the proceeding 11 fundamentally unfair. In re Hardy, 41 Cal.4th 977, 1018 (2007); Strickland, 12 supra at 696. The answer is yes, this trial was so one sided that Petitioner 13 never stood a chance without choice of counsel. The deficiency falls below the 14 standard reasonably expected of defense counsel under professional norms and 15 counsel have acted unreasonably by passively putting forth the appearance of 16 diligent representation. To provide a competent defense, a challenge to the 17 warrantless search and seizure of the home was required. Both counsel 18 Kamran and Takasugi should have been concerned with Petitioner's right to 19 privacy in his home and to make motions for the suppression of evidence. Had 20 counsel done so, there is a reasonable probability the result would have been 21 different.

22 Without any evidence from the warrantless search, the inferences of guilt 23 supporting the judgement are far more speculative and Petitioner was less 24 likely to be convicted. Petitioner has demonstrated that but for counsel's 25 deficient performance by unreasonably failing to challenge the admission of 26 substantially all of the evidence and witness statements presented at trial, 27 there was reasonable probability that bringing a successful motion to suppress 28 the evidence that would have resulted in different determination of the case.

1 The question before the Court now is whether a reasonable probability exists 2 that the jury would have had a reasonable doubt concerning Petitioner's guilt if 3 the evidence from Petitioner's home and related testimony had been excluded.
 4 Where the only evidence is circumstantial, there is strong possibility, yes.

5 RIGHT TO PUBLIC TRIAL

6 SUMMARY DENIAL IS CONTRARY TO OR AN UNREASONABLE APPLICATION OF 7 FEDERAL AND STATE LAW

8 To be competent, appellate counsel must prepare a legal brief containing 9 citations to the appropriate authority, and set forth all arguable issues. People
 10 v. Barton, 21 Cal.3d 513, 519 (1978). The inexcusable failure of petitioner's 11 appellate counsel to raise crucial assignments of error, which arguably might 12 have resulted in a reversal, deprived petitioner of the effective assistance of 13 appellate counsel. In re Smith, 3 Cal.3d 192, 202-203 (1970). Petitioner has 14 demonstrated a reasonable probability that but for appellate counsel's 15 unreasonable failure to raise the issues, Petitioner would have prevailed on 16 appeal and succeeded in obtaining a reversal. Smith v. Robbins, 528 U.S. 259, 17 285-286 (2000); In re Harris, supra at 833, fn.3.

18 The United States Constitution Sixth and Fourteenth Amendment and the 19 California Constitution Article I § 15 coextensively guarantee a criminal 20 defendant the right to a public trial including the right to have friends and 21 relatives present during the proceedings. People v. Woodward, 4 Cal.4th 376, 22 383 (1992) cert. den. sub nom. Woodward v. California, 507 U.S. 1053 (1993).
 23 The public has a right to be present whether or not any party has asserted the 24 right. Presley v. Georgia, 130 S.Ct. 721, 724-725 (2010). Where a closure motion 25 is not filed of record or made in open court, and when, as here, the court has 26 been made aware of the desire of specific members of the public to be present, 27 reasonable steps should be taken to afford such persons an opportunity to 28 submit their views to the court before exclusion is accomplished. U.S. v.

1 Brooklier, 658 F.2d 1162, 1168-69 (9th Cir. 1982). The particular interest and 2 threat to that interest, must “be articulated along with findings specific enough 3 that a reviewing court can determine whether the closure order was properly 4 entered.” Press-Enterprise Co. v. Superior Court, 464 U.S. 501, 510 (1984).

5 The Supreme Court in Waller imported Press Enterprise First Amendment 6 test for the Sixth Amendment stating that “there can be little doubt that the 7 explicit Sixth Amendment right of the accused is no less protective of a public 8 trial than implicit First Amendment right of the press and public.” Waller v.
9 Georgia, 467 U.S. 39, 46 (1984). The United States Supreme Court found the 10 Sixth Amendment public trial guarantee creates a “presumption of openness” 11 that can be rebutted only by a showing that exclusion of the public was 12 necessary to protect some “higher value” such as the defendant’s right to a fair 13 trial, or the government’s interest in preserving the confidentiality of the 14 proceedings.” Waller, supra at 44-45. The trial court was required to make 15 “specific written findings.” Id at 48; Woodward, supra at 383.

16 The exclusion of any nondisruptive spectator from a criminal trial should 17 never be undertaken without a full evaluation of the necessity for the exclusion 18 and the evaluation should be reflected in the record of the proceedings. People v.
19 Esquibel, 166 Cal.App.4th 539, 556 (2008). In considering whether a public trial 20 right violation has occurred, courts have treated partial closures – i.e. when 21 only some persons are excluded from the courtroom – differently from total 22 closures. People v. Scott, 10 Cal.App.5th 524, 532 (2017); accord Woodward, 23 supra at 384; Esquibel, supra at 552-554. The identity of the spectator sought to 24 be excluded is highly relevant in a partial closure situation. Esquibel, supra at 25 553. The constitutional infirmity stems primarily from the fact that the trial 26 court relied on the unsubstantiated statements of the prosecutor, rather than 27 conducting a public inquiry of the witness jurors. Instead the judge acted in 28 excess-jurisdiction improperly citing counsel for contempt and ordering counsel

1 removed as a spectator. There were alternatives available to the Court and no 2 specific written finding for a reviewing Court. Counsel has argued this in the 3 Supreme Court, but neither this Court nor the Ninth Circuit has addressed the 4 alleged coextensive violations to Petitioner and counsel. (EXBT. D).

5 PREJUDICIAL IMPACT OF ERROR

6 Given the automatic reversal for structural errors, resulting from the 7 violation of the public right to trial, appellant counsel should have been 8 successful at reversing the judgement for structural error, had she pursued the 9 argument on direct appeal. Appellant counsel was ineffective for failing to bring 10 any constitutional challenge on direct appeal where there was sufficient 11 evidence in the record of due process violations and the absence of specific 12 written findings justifying Petitioner's civil attorney's exclusion from the 13 proceedings to make it reasonably probable. Reversal on review would have 14 resulted in a more favorable outcome for Petitioner, allowing an opportunity to 15 retain counsel and challenge the principal evidence presented before trial.

16 CONCLUSION

17 Petitioner has set forth sufficient grounds to GRANT this petition for writ of 18 habeas corpus where the Superior Court's decision is so lacking in justification 19 that there was an error well understood and comprehend in existing law beyond 20 any possibility of fair-minded disagreement. Petitioner's petition for writ of 21 habeas corpus brought for ineffective assistance of counsel sets forth a prima 22 facie procedurally valid claim for relief.

23 PRAYER FOR RELIEF

24 WHEREFORE, Petitioner prays that the court grant relief to which he may 25 be entitled in this proceeding by issuance of order to show cause why the 26 judgement should not be VACTED.

VERIFICATION

I, Adam Jeremy Tenser, declare:

I am the attorney for Petitioner Blake Leibel, in this case. I am an attorney licensed to practice in the United States District Court, Central District of California and the Supreme Court of the State of California and have read the foregoing Petition and know its contents. The facts alleged in the Petition are within my own knowledge and I know these facts to be true.

This is the first petitioner for writ of habeas corpus in this Court.

I declare under the laws of California and penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct and that this verification was executed on this 22nd day of June, 2022.

Respectfully submitted,

Adam J. Tenser
